

German Learning : 4 Factors That Can Be Beneficial

The four factors that will determine your ability to learn German quickly are discussed in this post.

You will learn how long you will need to learn German, and how to speed up your learning depending on your goals, your current level, your access to native German speakers, and your study methods.

1. You can select the level you want to reach. You will require more time to achieve your goals the more fluently that you speak German. How long does it take you to move from an amateur to a cutting edge stage?

I will start with my own experience. I was B1 in the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages before I moved to Germany for a Masters. I took a year and a half to get here. I survived in my new home despite my poor German.

If you focus on German at home, you can expect to reach B1 within the same amount of time. If you are passionate about German, and have been a linguist before, then aim for C2 German fluency. You want to learn everything you can about German language, culture and manners. This section will explain how other factors affect the average time it takes for learners to reach C2.

Find out more about German Language Course in Pune.

2. How much German Immersion is available? Immersion is a method for learning languages that involves being immersed in the language. Immersion is an easy way to learn new words by repetition and context. There is no need to translate from your native language into German.

Immersion in a language is considered the fastest method to learn it. It is even more true if you are living in Germany, where you can fully immerse yourself. I am a German Teacher in India and recommend that my students go to Germany at the end the week for some light German classes. The students are immersed in German and receive targeted language training. The language can be learned in just six months with this strategy.

Each person is unique and has their own knowledge. This period can be as short as a month or up to several years, depending on your level of knowledge when you arrive. You can only do this if you immerse yourself in the language. You cannot go to English-speaking bars in Berlin.

What can you possibly do if you don't live in a place where German is currently spoken? Even though at-home immersion is slower than total immersion there are many online resources that can be helpful.

Online classes can be a good option. The German Language Classes in Pune offer authentic German lessons taught to you by German experts. You can learn new words through a variety of exercises. For more practice, you can make flashcards.

You can also practice German online by participating in language exchanges. You can talk to native speakers by video or text.

3. This is known as "language sense." To learn a foreign language, we need to have a high level of intuition. The words we hear are paired with things we already know. Because English and German are cousins, the co-relation method is a great way to learn for native English speakers.

I will give you an illustration. When I hear "sit" in English, I automatically think of "sit". Both words sound similar. It is not necessary for me to have studied the word 'sitz' in depth. My language and context knowledge can help me determine the meaning.

If you have studied some English-German cognates, you will already be able to communicate with each other! It's more than just the similar words.

You can improve your communication skills by learning the basic principles of German. Take the separable word. Verbs beginning with "aus", like "auswandern", 'ausnutzen', 'ausgehen' and ausnutzen all perform an action towards the speaker. The meanings of the various German verbs will be clearer.

Understanding the meanings behind prefixes can help you improve your German skills.

There will always be exceptions. As a child, I would never have made the connection between "geld" (money) and "geld." I need only to remember the German words in these situations. You can relate to 70% of the cases.

It's hard to tell how much faster you will learn if you can relate with others. You will save time and have more time for other German concepts.

4. German Punctuation - Your Attention

It is important to co-relate words in German and your native tongue. However, you should not fall into the trap of translating the same words. Focusing on German grammar structures can help you improve your fluency and sound more natural.

In German statements and questions, verbs are used a lot. You will not be able to make any sense if you try to fit German words in sentences with the same structure as English sentences.

How long does it usually take to learn German language?

You should work on your grammar right away if you want to quickly learn German. In your notebook, keep a list with the most common German sentences.

The immersion method can be combined with grammar practice. Listening to German music stars can help you retain German linguistic patterns.

Want to do things faster? German Language Training in Pune can help you improve your German grammar.

A little-known fact: You won't always be fluent. Even if you have achieved fluency, you will still need to continue learning the language.

I'm a C2 German speaker, but I keep up my German knowledge by reading German newspapers, listening to German music, and doing self-education. This is what I tell people when they ask how I can remember the language even though I returned to India 10 years after leaving Germany.

It is important to remember that learning a new language is not a scientific process, but an art. Try to learn German by being receptive, rather than adopting an extremely sensible strategy. Develop your own logic to interact with the language.

It is not easy to learn a new language. It requires time, dedication and effort. The most important thing is to be enthusiastic.

Read more here:

Dnyaneshwar Paduka Chowk, 7M Language Classes“ Shreenath Plaza Second Floor, Office Block 50, “A Wing Modern College, N Main Rd, Pune, Maharashtra 411005